ABOUT THE STATE.

Items of Interest Gleaned From Our Exchanges.

Harry Wall, of Burlington, is recovering from injuries received at Essex Junction station last Tuesday. He was attempting to board a train when the engine suddenly started throwing Mr. Wall heavily against an express truck which was nearby. He was picked up unconscious and taken into a nearby drug store where medical aid was summoned. It was found that he had suffered several bad cuts and contusions but he was not seriously injured.

Captain Lindsey, of the independent base ball team which was formed in Burlington high school immediately after the passage of the anti-smokers law by the high school faculty, objects to the team's being called a smokers team. He claims that any one who is a good base ball player can join the team, and that it is not made up solely of those who were disqualified for the regular high school team. He does not wish it to be considered a disgrace to belong to this team.

Poisons in Food.

Perhaps you don't realize that many pay poisons originate in your food, but some day you may feel a twinge of dyspepsia that will convince you. Dr. King's New Life Pills are guaranteed to cure all sickness due to poisons of undigested food, or your money back. 25c at Red Cross Pharmacy. Try them.

ICE CUTTING.

Sharp Tools and Quick Work Important—Handy Implements.

A favorite trick for cutting ice is fourteen inches, but often eight inch ice is stored satisfactorily. If snow covers the field it can be removed by a one horse scraper. Beware of sudden thaw, as water standing on the ice soon causes it to rot. A field thus covered can be tapped in a number of places, and the surface water will sink and raise the ice. The auger here illustrated is useful in this work; also in ascertaining quality and depth of ### ICE. In harvesting ice sharp tools and celerity are of importance in view of sudden weather changes.

Snow ice, if in heavy coating, should be removed either by a snow ice planer on the field or cut away as the cakes are being sent to the icehouse. In laying out your ice field be sure to select ice of the finest quality possible. After the ice tract is determined a heavy cord is run between two stakes. Along this as a guide the hand plow is passed, thus defining the line to be cut in the ice. A horse marker is then inserted in the groove thus made, cutting three inches into the ice.

The field is paralleled by these grooves, and then the plows are started, the ice being penetrated to within about four inches of the bottom of the ice. The same operations are made in lines running at right angles with those first laid out, thus cutting the field into regular blocks. If the snow ice plane is to be used the field is worked in one direction only.

Care should be taken that the channels are kept open. Braces will be needed should the current be strong. After your channel is made the ice is sawed and barreled off—American Agriculture.

RAISING A FEW CHICKENS.

Helpful Suggestions For Amateurs In Poultry Culture.

Following is a summary of suggestions from the Connecticut State experiment station of value to the many people who raise a few chickens for their own use or for local market. Much depends upon the selection of eggs for hatching. Eggs for this purpose should be of uniform shape and size and thickness of shell. Rough shelled, dirty and mottled eggs, with thin shells should be excluded. "There is some doubt as to the advisability of setting small eggs. While it is possible that they may be as fertile and produce as many chicks as larger eggs, it is probable that pullets from the former will have a tendency to lay small eggs." Small eggs should therefore be avoided.

Eggs which are over five days old should not be used. "Every egg should be carefully dated when taken from the nest in order to avoid error on this point. While good hatches have been secured from eggs that were three weeks old when placed in the incubator, as a rule they cannot be expected to hatch well after they are ten days old."

A Bank of England Curio.

Among the curios preserved in the Bank of England is a bank note that passed through the Chicago fire. The paper was consumed, but the ink held together, and the printing is quite legible. It is kept carefully under glass. The bank paid the note.

TO KILL THE DANDRUFF GERM.

Is the Only Possible Way of Having An Effective Cure.

If you see a woman or a man with luxuriant glossy hair, you may be sure neither has dandruff to amount to anything. In nearly every case where women and men have thin brittle hair, they owe it to dandruff. There are hundreds of preparations that "claim" to cure dandruff, but not one but Newbro's Herpicide tells you that dandruff is the result of a germ burrowing into the scalp, and that permanent cure of dandruff and its consequent falling and baldness, can only be had by killing the germ and there is no other preparation that will destroy that germ but Newbro's Herpicide. "Destroy the cause, and you remove the effect." Sold by leading druggists. Send 25c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

BACK TO OLD METHODS.

Some Trades Unionists Advocate a Return to Secrecy.

A labor movement about which little or nothing has been said in public is being quietly agitated by some of the older leaders of trades unionism, says McManis in Chicago Inter Ocean. The aim of the promoters of the movement is to bring about a revival of secret methods in trades unions.

In defense of their attitude the advocates of secrecy assert that much harm has been done to labor by open agitation of political, social and other problems. It is claimed that some of the ideas spread throughout labor circles have resulted in strikes and dissensions which otherwise would not have occurred.

In other words, it is believed that too much publicity tends to inflame the minds of radical union men to such an extent that they do unwise things in an attempt to show the world that they "are not bluffing."

"Let us get back to the old methods," was the recent expression of opinion from a labor leader whose name is familiar to every labor man in Chicago. "I am in favor of doing things first and telling about them afterward. I do not mean to convey the idea that secrecy, in the sense that I mean it, should be used as a cloak for acts that are detrimental to the honor of labor. It is simply a fact that many an employer would have granted demands in the past and thus averted strikes if he had not been nettled by the published boasts of labor leaders.

"Employers, like the average man, do not like to have their opponents chortling over their probable discomfiture before the trouble actually begins. They come to feel that they will appear in a weak and defenseless light if they do not resist the demands of organized labor, just though they may be. The noisy man is at fault. He is the man who should suffer a mild application of 'gas' rule."

"Earnest and intelligent labor men can deal with capital in the same way that capitalists deal with each other. Men who are planning to buy or sell railroads, for instance, are not in the habit of advertising their intentions until the deal is practically consummated."

There is, of course, another side to the question which has been discussed in the foregoing paragraphs. The advocates of publicity claim that their policy has done more for labor in one year than secrecy ever did in a decade. As it is in the insurance and rebate quarrels in the capitalistic world, their war cry is "publicity." They believe that their policy is the one calculated to more nearly equalize the relations between capital and labor.

To the majority of employers talk of secrecy in labor unions, when unmodified, is apt to appear synonymous with conspiracy and slugging. Unhappily for labor, secrecy has resulted in too many cases in exactly that sort of thing. It is time that a healthier understanding of the dignity of labor should do away with the methods which make for wrongdoing and time after time rent the fabric of respect which labor is steadily weaving about itself. The men interested in the new movement strive to make it clear that their brand of secrecy offers no hope to the man who would break the law.

Indian Wars.

Our government has had fourteen great Indian wars which are estimated to have cost not less than $150,000,000, and as much more in private loss was sustained by individuals.

A Lucky Birthday.

There is an old superstition that to be born on Christmas day is to be lucky all one's life, and in Silesia there is a belief that a boy born on Christmas day must be brought up a lawyer or he will become a thief.
